The United States Naval Submarine Base Bangor is located in Silverdale, Washington. The 7,000 acre facility retains over 10,000 base employees and is home to 5,000 members of the U.S. military and their families. From its Bangor field office, the Northwest Naval Criminal Investigative Service (NCIS) unit serves the needs of the United States Navy and Marine Corps in four states and five Canadian provinces. In addition to their NCIS objectives, executive officers, field agents and the administrative team members are required to provide assistance to Bangor's broader mission.

In 2008, the leadership at the NCIS Northwest Field Office moved to a new location. The 9,000 square foot building had previously been used as a housing facility and was renovated to accommodate the NCIS division. The executive officers were challenged to modernize the overall look and feel of the offices and honor the rank of the individuals in each office. The furniture needed to optimize space, support the administrative and logistical functions of the NCIS team, and deliver a lasting professional aesthetic.

With the installation of Miro™ in executive offices and Fusion™ in administrative spaces, Watson helped the NCIS division achieve a consistent look and feel – one that maintains rank differentiation. Miro provides flexibility and modern, executive-standard style and Fusion furniture gives the administrative team height adjustability, and the flexibility to work independently or together. Both lines are visually cohesive and may be customized to accommodate changing personnel needs.

The installation at NCIS Sub Base Bangor demonstrates Watson’s ability to intimately understand the unique needs of its clients. Watson helped the division redefine their office environment by providing furniture that supports both function and the organization’s culture, and by supplying products that are sustainably manufactured to withstand the test of time.
